Why Left-Leaning Americans Are Heading to Gun Stores in Drove

It's not the headline you might expect in 2026, but the numbers and stories don't lie. A growing number of liberals, Democrats, people of color, women, and LGBTQ+ individuals are heading to gun shops and ranges—not out of a sudden love for traditional gun culture, but driven by fear, self-protection, and a rethinking of what [...] Read More

AK/SCAR Hybrid with Quick Change Caliber Capability

If you've spent any time in the firearms world, you've likely heard the endless debate: AR-15 vs. AK-47. One offers world-class ergonomics and modularity; the other offers legendary "it-just-works" reliability. But what if you didn't have to choose? Robinson Armament, the visionary behind the SCAR program, created the XCR to include AK-like internals and a [...] Read More

Taurus Just Entered the PDW Game: Hands-On First Impressions of the New RPC 9mm Roller-Delayed Beast

Taurus has a reputation for delivering solid, affordable firearms that punch above their price tag. On April 14, 2026, they officially stepped into the growing personal defense weapon (PDW) and large-format pistol category with something pretty interesting — the all-new Taurus RPC 9mm. This isn't just another blowback 9mm carbine. Taurus went with a roller-delayed [...] Read More

China's Shifting Role in Arming Iran: From 1980s to Quiet Components Today

The relationship between China and Iran has always been pragmatic, built on energy needs, strategic balancing, and a healthy dose of deniability. With fresh US intelligence reports swirling this month about possible Chinese missile shipments to Iran, the spotlight is back on how Beijing has quietly supported its Middle Eastern partner over decades—while trying not

The US Has Thrown a Naval Gauntlet at Iran's Doorstep

With tensions already sky-high from months of conflict involving Israel and Iran, President Donald Trump's administration activated a blockade on Iranian ports. The move came after weekend talks in Pakistan collapsed, leaving both sides digging in their heels over nuclear concessions and a fragile ceasefire that's barely a week old. I've
